I talked to mum last night and we went through the letter that you sent to me dated the 8th of September 2011. She is not capable of explaining to me why she wrote any part of the letter. Mum is totally frustrated as she has no recollection of writing this letter. I took the precaution of going through mum's letters from the last 20 years and I can not recognize her style of writing. Mum does not have a type writer or a computer so it quite clear that you are the author of this letter and it is not mum.

I should warn you that it is against the law to manipulate a person that can no longer manage their own affairs. Mum has several times repeated to me that she does not know how money was transferred from her account to your account. I have of course the necessary documents to prove that a large sum of money has been transferred into your account. In view of the above you will immediately cease manipulating mum's accounts or try to sublet her flat without having an independent party testify that she is acting under her own free will. I have instructed my lawyer to take all necessary measures should you continue to break the law.
